USE OF FORCE INSTRUCTOR

Nothing is more challenging than teaching or reviewing the use of force. This two-day program focuses on developing and executing a use-of-force program for agency in-service training. The program includes an in-depth review of critical case law and teaches attendees how to connect with the officers they are charged with training by using scenario-based learning techniques. Some of the topics discussed will include: De-escalation techniques, the perils of waiting too long to use force, developing training programs to include a variety of response options, how to safely create stress in the training environment, critical thinking drills, and more.

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

- Practical and easy to understand review of critical use of force case law and how to properly apply it.
- Incorporating communication during a use of force incident.
- Development of a training program to incorporate transitions between response options.
- All attendees receive a PowerPoint, Exams and Sign-off sheets. You'll have a "ready to go" program to bring back to your agency.
