COURSE DESCRIPTION

Front Line Leadership is a vital 3-day course for all peace officers and professional staff in public safety, designed for those transitioning into or currently holding supervisory roles. As public safety demands grow, effective leadership is essential for organizational success.

This course stands out for its emphasis on self-reflection and personal accountability, encouraging participants to lead themselves before leading others. By reconnecting with their professional "why" and purpose, attendees will understand how these elements influence organizational culture, staffing, retention, and recruitment.

Participants will deepen their leadership understanding and improve work and personal relationships while recognizing the interconnectedness of work and home life for overall well-being. This comprehensive program includes reflective modules and group discussions that challenge participants' thought processes and enhance their leadership capabilities.

The Original Front Line Leadership is a prerequisite for attending Front Line Leadership II, making it essential for all aspiring and current leaders to positively impact their organizations and communities while fostering accountability and well-being.
