ABOUT THE CLASS

Street-Level Policing is a comprehensive course presented by Officer Jim Petrucci, designed to equip police officers with the necessary skills to detect crime and successfully apprehend criminals. The course emphasizes identifying behavioral cues that signal criminal activity and covers crucial topics such as pedestrian stops, bicycle stops, mere encounters, and traffic stops, along with key behaviors to observe both before and during these interactions.

This class aims to sharpen your awareness, enabling you to recognize individuals involved in criminal activity, whether on foot, in a vehicle, or on a bicycle. You'll also learn how to identify and police high-crime areas effectively, regardless of the jurisdiction you work in. Attendees will be taught how to conduct effective interviews during stops and understand that everything begins with behavior, alongside laws that may not be widely known to officers. Additionally, the course teaches officers how to gather intelligence and use it to build strong, proactive cases. It also explores the use of social media and available technology to streamline investigations, saving time and improving the efficiency of apprehending criminals.

Real-life examples, shown through body camera and dash cam footage, demonstrate the practical application of these techniques. By the end of the course, participants will have mastered a variety of skills, enabling them to detect and stop criminal activity, overcome resistance during encounters, and contribute to safer communities. Whether you're new to law enforcement or have years of experience, this course provides invaluable insights for any officer striving to make a significant impact in their community.
